

Robert George was a longtime college culinary arts instructor. Before that he taught high school and worked as a facilitator/trainer developing corporate communication and team building skills. He is the co-creator of Taste of Work (TOW), a mini-documentary and community engagement project on the intersections of work, food, and community (TOW), and is currently working on TOW's next series of films.